GEO. N. SANDERS.

The New York Sun, of August 13, contains the following in addition to what we have already given concerning the late Geo. N. Sanders:

we have already given concerning the late Geo. N. Senders:

He was born in Lexington, Ky., February 21, 1812. He came of a talented family, his father, Lewis Sanders, being in the early days of Kentucky a man of much activity and force of character. His grand father, Col. George Nicholas, for whom he was named, is known in history as the proposer of the famous Kentucky resolutions, and the advocate of the adoption of the Federal Constitution by Virginia, against the opposition of Patrick Henry. Mr. Sanders' introduction into political life was by the organization of the first mass meeting in favor of the annexation of Texas. Twenty-five years ago he was famous as the champion of young American Democraty. He was an enthusiastic Democrat, but his attractive personal qualities always secured him many warm friends among the Whigs and Republicans. His life was full of eccentricities and adventures. He traveled much over the world and everywhere was welcomed. He held but two offices—that of Consul at London under President Pierce, and Navy Agent in New York under President Buchanan. He was the friend of Douglas in his opposition to Buchanan through the Kanasa and Nebraska political wars, and was his devoted henchman in the canvass for Douglas' nomination for the Presidency. All through the war Mr. Sanders' sympathies and efforts were with the South; and his notoriety was increased in the closing years of the great struggle by his efforts at peace negotistions at Niagara. Mr. Sanders wrote on July 5, 1864, to Horace Greeley that he, with Clement C. Clay, of Alabams, and James P. Holcombe, of Virginia, "would proceed to Washington in the interest of peace, if full protection were accorded them." Mr. Greeley, being otherwise competently assured that the responded to, and suggested certain terms of reunion and peace which he judged might be advantageously proffered to the rebels. As the President refused to promise more than the safe conduct of the reputed peace commissioners both ways, "the whole matter terminated in fa the reputed peace commissioners both ways, "the whole matter terminated in the reputed peace commissioners both ways, "the whole mater terminated in failure and disappointment, with some exasperation on the rebel side." Mr. Greeley, in his "American Conflict," terms this one of "two abortive efforts to open a door to accommodation between the belligerents." Since that time Mr. Sanders took no active part in public life. He traveled some in Europe, and was well known in Paris and London. He has lived some time in New York, and died surrounded by his family, of whom there are his widow and two sous.

MEN AND WOMEN IN SUMMER.—Meet a fellow-man when the thermometer is up among the mineties, and you see him mopping the awat from his face, digging the dust from his eyes, his paper collar wilted, his linen coat streaked with sweat, and exclaims: "Hot! Why I never saw such weather!" He tells you how the rubber in his suspenders has melted and run together; how he could wring pints of water from his clothing; how he has lost five pounds of flesh in ten days; how the sun has crisped his boots and mined his eyesight, and he starts off with the remark: "Never saw anything like it." Now meet a lady, and what do you see? Clean white dress, dainty collar, jaunty tie, hair nicely combed, eyes bright and smiling, no dust—everything as tidy and orderly as if the weather was October. She dosen't hurry a bit, stops now and then right in the sun, cuts the air with her parasol as if she had no use for it, and always manages to just escape the furious cloud of dust coming up or down the street. There are no inquiries down the street. There are no inquiries about the state of the thermometer, no about the state of the thermoment, in longing looks at sodawater signs and ice-wagons, and no application of the hand-kerchief. She does not hurry, does not dash for the shade of six-foot awnings, and hang to the spot, waiting for a cloud to pass over the sun, and when she takes a car it seems to matter little whether all the windows are up or whether they are down. How on earth do they man-

Userul Facts.—A bell rung under water returns a tone as distinct as if rung in the air. Stop one ear with the finger and press the other to the end of a long stick, and if a watch be held at the other be the wood a stock ever so long. Tie a poker in the middle of a strip of flame! be the wood a stick ever so long. He a poker in the middle of a strip of flamel two or three feet long, and press your thumbs or fingers into your ears, while you swing your poker against an iron fender, and you will hear a sound like that of a heavy church bell. These experiments prove that water, wood and flannel are good conductors of sound, for the sound of the bell, the watch and the fender passes through the water and along the deal and flannel to the ear, and excite in us the sense of sound. Sound of all kinds, it is ascertained, travels at the rate of fifteen miles in a minute. The softest whisper travels as fast as the most tremendous thunder. The knowledge of this fact has been applied to the measurement of distance. Suppose a ship in distress fires a gun, the light of which is seen on shore, or by another vessel, twenty seconds before a report is heard, it is known to be a distance of twenty times 1,143 feet, or a little more than four and a half miles. four and a half miles.

The latest thing in hotels is suggested by an ingesions correspondent of the Galveston News. It is to be called the Aerial Sanitarium. It is to be a huge balloon, secured by strong attachments at a proper height. "Galveston," he says, "is within one mile of the most delightful climate in the world, and this climate is directly overhead." To the enormous balloon there is to be attached a frame work of sufficiently strong wire, fitted up to accommodate 100 guests. This airy salcon will be reached by a smaller balloon acting as an elevator. When the barometer indicates disturbing weather, the gas can be let off and the weather, the gas can be let off and the whole establishment brought down to the VARIOUS methods are proposed by which to utilize the blast furnace slag. It is an interesting fact that what was not long since regarded as a troublesome and useless by-product, has come to be regarded as one of positive value. Among the latest of these new methods is that by which slag is made to serve as a valuable constituent of an artificial pumice stone. The slag is first granulated by allowing it to fall from a height into a stream or tank of water; the granulus thus formed is mixed with hydraulic cement or ordinary alaked lime. This mass, while soft, is pressed into brick-shaped moulds; the bricks, after two weeks exposure, become hard and durable.

THE attention of the medical world abroad has been aroused by the new treatment of cancer, introduced in London by a Hungarian physician named Grob. He contends that cancer is not a local but a general disease; that it arises from the presence of a poison in the sys-tem, and that the knife will never cure

Marmage. — Women of high intellectual endowment, and much dignity of deportment, have the greatest difficulty in marrying, and stand most in need of a mother's help. And this is not because they are themselves fastidious, for they are often as little so as any, but because men are not humble enough to wish to have their superiors for their wives. Great wealth in a woman tends to keep at a distance both the proud and the humble, leaving the unhappy live bait to be snapped at by the hardy and the greedy. If the wealthy father of an only daughter could be gifted with a knowledge of what paternal care and kindness really is, it is our assured belief that he would disinher it her. If he leaves her his wealth, the best thing for her to do is to marry the most respectable man she can find of the class of men who marry for money. An heiress, remaining unmarried, is a prey to all manner of extortion and imposition, and with the best of intentions, becomes—through a bounty—a corruption to her neighborhood, and a curse to the poor; or, if experience shall put her on her guard, she will lead a life of suspicion and resistance, to the injury of her own mind and nature. ing to the Company, for any parties wishing to purchase.

Having pa'l especial attention to the practice before the Arited States Land Office for nine percent respectfully tenders his services for that branch of business. Will take necessary steps to secure the selection of lands by the State, and obtain patents for the same for parties with or without their being present.

Having an associate Attenney at Washington, especial attention will be given to obtaining patents to public hards and mines, as well as suits and business generally before the Departments.
